I first met Art Oswald a year ago when I began to take over the website duties of the Pocono Bluegrass and Folk Society. He was our administrator and had done a great job of setting up our website, adding many different options all of which made the website more valuable and easy as a tool both for people visiting and as it turned out, for me as the one putting stuff on the website.

So, I'm stupid right, I didn't know anything about websites. I had plenty of experience on computers doing things that I had gotten used to doing, but websites? Complete mystery. Must be hard!

Absolutely not, they are easy if you have a good teacher and guide from the beginning. Oh, there is a mysterious side, don't get me wrong but there is no need to be worried about that side because Art takes care of all that. (All that code stuff.) What we folks that put the messages up need to know is pretty simple and Art walked me through it, not once, not twice but because of my limitations several times before I finally got the hang of it. I'm sure you will do better than me! What more can I say, technically the man is very proficient. Everything works and there have been no problems and that is my proof of that. He is full of suggestions about what makes a good website and why. He keeps coming up with suggestions for improvement of our site; we now have a large photo library, a great calendar, a nice blog page and a few other bells and whistles that make our site something that I know our whole executive is quite proud of. On top of all that he has the patience of Job, and, he is available when you need him. It will be your website and what you make of it is up to you but if you need the framework and will work with someone that has your best interest at heart, Art Oswald is the person for you

The Pocono Bluegrass and Folk Society is a not for profit, 501c3, all volunteer organization. We are supported, in part, by the Pennsylvania Partners in the Arts, the regional funding partnership of the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts, a state agency. Funding in this region is administered by the Pocono Arts Council, Stroudsburg, PA. Further funding is from the East Stroudsburg Savings Association, the Jacob Stroud Foundation and especially by our members. Thank you all!
